Bouffant Tunic Over Drop Skirt

In some instances the wide hoop effect which is so typical of the season, is featured with a bouffant drape. This proves an odd and interesting combination. This girlish and attractive dance gown, fashioned in pale blue tulle, is designed to effect a bouffant tunic, over a wide drop skirt. The bodice haswing sleeves of silver lace.

For the Cookbook

The following are two Americanized Chinese recipes which the housewife may like to try:

PINEAPPLE PIKE.
Skin, bone and fillet a good sized pike; dust with pepper and salt, and dip in a little salt pork fat that has been fried out from two slices of salt pork, and in which the juice of an onion has been squeezed. Drain off and broil the fish until it is a delicate brown. Have ready a brown sauce made of a half pound of diced top round steak and a half pound of lean pork; put on to boil in a pint of water. When cooked down, strain and add a cup of finely chopped fresh pineapple, six water chestnuts cut fine, and a tablespoon of cut bamboo sprouts. Let all simmer gently, then thicken with a little brown flour. Turn over the fish and garnish with spoonfuls of crispy fried Chinese egg noodles.

CHINESE SALAD.
Pare and slice very thin one Chinese cucumber. These cucumbers grow very long, slender and succulent. They are not as firm as those we are accustomed to and have a flavor peculiar to themselves. Chop a red pepper very fine and sprinkle over the cucumber with a little salt. Cut fine the heart of a head of Chinese cabbage lettuce and add it to the cucumber. Take a half cup of grated horse-radish, a teaspoon of sugar, a tablespoon of vinegar, and a cup of cream. Mix this dressing thoroughly and pour over the salad.

VARIATIONS IN SALT PORK.
Here are six dinner menus made from salt pork, potatoes, onions and blackberries, just to show what can be done by way of variety.

1.—Baked potatoes, fried salt pork, milk gravy, fried onions, white bread, blackberry pie.
2.—Potatoes in jackets, salt pork fritters, creamed onions, graham bread, blackberry dumplings.
3.—Vegetable soup of potatoes, onions and salt pork (all chopped), blackberry dumplings, croquettes.
4.—Fried potatoes and onions, boiled salt pork, corn bread, blackberry steamed pudding.
5.—Boiled salt pork, with potatoes and onions cooked whole with it, graham zema, blackberry shortcake.
6.—Shepherd's pie (potatoes, onions and salt pork cut into cubes, boiled, gravy thickened, crust on top, cornstarch pudding with blackberry sauce.—Woman's World for January.

IMPORTANCE OF HOT OVEN.
Before putting a roast of beef in the oven, be sure that the oven is very hot, so hot that it will sear the meat quickly, else the juices will be drawn out of the meat.—Dallas Morning News.

THORNDIKE EGGS.
Poach six eggs and remove to circular pieces of toast. Cover eggs with sauce and garnish with toast points and parsley. For the sauce beat the yolks of three eggs slightly and add three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and a few grains of cayenne. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, and add tomato catsup to taste.

OUR FOUNDATION STONES.

Would it not be interesting if we could visualize and really see what influences people have had on our lives?

I believe that no one ever comes into our lives by chance, and that each one, with his or her individuality and view of life, effects us in some way. While some people we have met have been foundation stones in the building of our character and life, others have been like the grains of sand in the cement that joined it all together.

If we are given to introspection, we may at times have given credit to these great influences. If we have just lived day by day, taking things as they come, we may never have stopped to think how much we have been influenced by those who have come in touch with us. Each one has been a greater or less influence.

Have we ever been grateful enough to those who have added to our character, strengthened our moral forces, encouraged us when we were about to give up, thinking all was lost; those whose faith in us has spurred us on to greater results?

Is there not some friend who just by his or her never failing confidence in our ability to win out, who, no matter how many difficulties have beset our path, has been a sustaining power all through our darkest days? Perhaps it was only some one whom we hardly knew, but who got beneath the smile on our face, and our casual manner, and read the strain and anxiety in our eyes, read the secret of our worry, and put new courage into us almost subconsciously, by giving us credit for what we had done, and giving us faith in ourselves for what we could do.

Perhaps another has volunteered financial aid; has tided us over some crisis that might have finished us. It may have been only a small amount. We may not have accepted the offer, we may even have forgotten the act, yet if we recall the situation, the stress of circumstances that seemed about to crush us, we will realize what an important stone that was in the construction of our life.

So if we would look back to certain times in our lives we would find how much certain people have meant to us. It need not of necessity be family or friend, in fact it often has come from unexpected sources. But they have been big stones in the foundation of our success.

Some of them have crossed our lives at irregular intervals. Some of them have crossed our path like ships that pass in the night and we have only the memory of a signal or a bright colored light. Some, like tornadoes, have come near ripping up every foundation, and yet in the end have proved to us on how firm a foundation we really do stand. Sympathies, antipathies, affections, psychological influences that we may not even be conscious of, have affected our ideas and become foundation stones in our lives.

Let us then take time to mark by certain signs these helps in our lives; give credit where credit is due. If it is too late to tell our appreciation and gratitude, at least we can have a grateful heart and thankful memory.
